Bollea was given a citation that listed her Blood Alcohol content at 0.84, just slightly over the 0.8 legal limit. The story said the information operator at the jail also said she was booked for driving with a suspended license. A representative of Bollea insisted she was not arrested on the latter charge, only saying she was on her way back home from a jewelry function in Los Angeles where, her rep claimed, she had a glass of champagne on an empty stomach, and because she was taking antibiotics, it increased the effect of the alcohol.
